Business Valuations

When an opportunity or crisis arises, would you know what your business is worth? A situation such as the sale of a business, a divorce, a gift, or the death of an owner requires you to know the value of your company.

Andrews Hooper Pavlik PLC (AHP) can assist you with a business valuation to establish the value of a partial or entire interest in a closely-held business or professional practice.

Different factors and approaches are taken into consideration when conducting a valuation, including quantitative and qualitative items, as well as tangible and intangible factors related to the business being valued. Asset-based, income-based, or market-based approaches are considered depending on your unique situation.

Valuations are generally needed at a critical time in one's professional or personal life. It is important that you have an advisor that you can trust. AHP works closely with your management team to make sure that the process goes as smoothly as possible.

Many types of valuations have been performed by AHP based on an organization's specific needs. AHP provides the type of custom analysis and documentation needed for the situation.

Reasons for Business Valuations

Industry Experience

AHP has professionals that are Certified Valuation Analysts and members of the National Association of Certified Valuators and Analysts (NACVA). NACVA is a substantial group of business valuation professionals who are CPA's and are well-educated and trained in accounting, tax, and financial analysis. Furthermore, NACVA's certification process is rigorous and requires a complete understanding of the valuation process.
